Roberto Garza Pérez: el arte de crear felicidad

Del taller de caricaturas de su padre en Monterrey a los lienzos que pinta hoy en San Antonio, cada obra está hecha 100% a mano.

Nace en la ciudad de Monterrey, N.L. México el 7 de Julio de 1971. Sus padres son Irma Pérez Guerrero quien falleció en 1999 y Rodolfo Garza García, de origen mexicanos, tuvieron 9 hijos, 5 hombres y 4 mujeres; Roberto fue el quinto. hermano. Sus estudios fueron primaria, secundaria y preparatoria. Roberto a la edad de 15 años le ayudaba a su padre a colorear los dibujos o caricaturas de políticos que su Padre hacía, tanto para el periódico ABC de Monterrey, como el Diario de Monterrey, iniciando allí su inspiración por el dibujo.

Su padre era diseñador gráfico y caricaturista; como pasatiempo pintaba al óleo, y él coleccionaba libros de pintores famosos y a Roberto le gustaba verlos constantemente.

A pesar de que Roberto Garza está en San Antonio Texas sigue su trayectoria en México ya que en 2020 le notificaron que en 2021 una de sus obras sería utilizada por el Servicio Postal Mexicano (SEPOMEX), para el diseño de una estampilla postal homenaje por el 100 aniversario luctuoso de Venustiano Carranza Ex-Presidente de México.

Dicho material fue distribuido en la red de oficinas postales para su utilización como medio de porte en cartas y paquetes que circulan a lo largo y ancho del territorio nacional y a nivel internacional con el objeto de difundir la cultura de México.

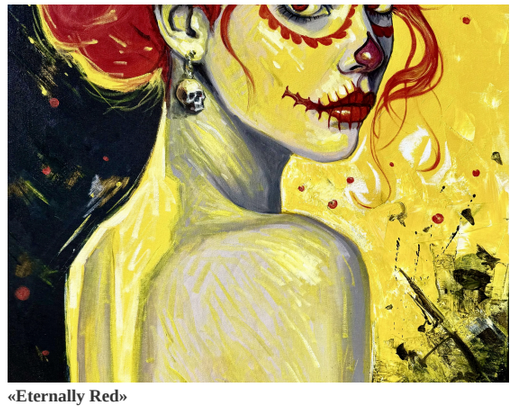

Roberto Garza va con pasos firmes y tiene fe que va a ir creciendo año tras año haciendo realidad su slogan el arte de crear felicidad para todos aquellos que desean plasmar sus memorias en un lienzo que pasa de generación a generación perdurando por siempre pero sobre todo hecho 100% a mano en cada brochazo que da, plasmando la energía y el amor del artista.

El propósito de un Permiso Federal de Operación es mejorar el acatamiento general con las normas que gobiernan el control de la contaminación atmosférica, claramente definiendo todos los requisitos aplicables como están definidos en el Título 30 del Código Administrativo de Texas § 122.10 (30 TAC § 122.10, por sus siglas en inglés). El permiso preliminar, si es aprobado, codificará las condiciones bajo las cuales el área debe operar. El permiso no autorizará construcción nueva. El director ejecutivo ha concluido la revisión técnica de la solicitud y ha hecho una decisión preliminar para preparar el permiso preliminar para la revisión y comentario público. El director ejecutivo de la TCEQ recomienda la expedición de este permiso preliminar. La solicitud de permiso, la declaración de fundamentos y el proyecto de permiso estarán disponibles para su consulta y reproducción en TCEQ San Antonio Regional 13 Office, 14250 Judson Rd, San Antonio, Texas 78233-4480 a partir del primer día de la publicación de este aviso. El proyecto de permiso y la declaración de fundamentos están disponibles electrónicamente en la página web de la TCEQ: www.tceq.texas.gov/goto/tvnotice. COMENTARIOS/NOTIFICACIÓN PÚBLICA Y AUDIENCIA. Cualquier persona puede entregar comentarios públicos sobre el permiso preliminar. Comentarios relacionados a la exactitud, lo completo, y lo apropiado de las condiciones del permiso pueden resultar en cambios al permiso preliminar.

Una persona que podría ser afectada por la emisión de contaminantes atmosféricos del área del sitio del permiso puede solicitar una audiencia de aviso y comentarios. El propósito de la audiencia de notificación y comentarios es para proporcionar la oportunidad para entregar comentarios sobre el permiso preliminar. El permiso puede ser cambiado en base a si los comentarios relacionados con el permiso permiten el cumplimiento con el Título 30 del Código Administrativo de Texas, Capítulo 122 (ejemplos pueden incluir que el permiso no tiene todos los requisitos aplicables que correspondan o que no se cumplieron los procedimientos de aviso público). Todos los asuntos razonablemente verificables deben ser planteados y todos los argumentos razonablemente disponibles deben ser entregados a no más tardar al final del período de comentarios públicos. Si se concede una audiencia de aviso y comentario, todos los individuos que presentaron comentarios por escrito o una solicitud de audiencia recibirán confirmación por escrito de la audiencia. Esta confirmación indicará la fecha, hora y lugar de la audiencia.

Este envío de correo también proveerá instrucciones para hacer peticiones públicas a la Agencia de Protección Ambiental (EPA, por sus siglas en inglés), para solicitar que la EPA se oponga a la expedición del permiso preliminar. Después de recibir una solicitud, la EPA solamente podrá objetar a la expedición de un permiso que no cumple con los requisitos aplicables o los requisitos del 30 TAC Capítulo 122.

Latino Artist Vincent Valdez Wins a 2026 MacArthur Foundation Fellowship

Vincent Valdez, a Mexican-American visual artist living and working in San Antonio, recently received the MacArthur Foundation Fellowship in the 2-D Visual Art category. The John D. and Catherine C. MacArthur Foundation recognized Valdez along with nineteen others as recipients of the annual "genius grants" across the arts, sciences, and humanities. The award provides $800,000 over five years with no restrictions on how recipients use the funding.

The MacArthur Foundation's official recognition of Vincent Valdez as a MacArthur Fellow includes a video presentation. In the video, Valdez discusses the underlying concerns of his work—especially his attention to histories and present-day realities affecting Latino communities in the United States. Valdez describes himself as a visual artist commenting, "I look back at history and I use it as a means to not reflect on what has come before us, where we've been, what we've done, but I use it as a means to connect with the present to make sense of today."

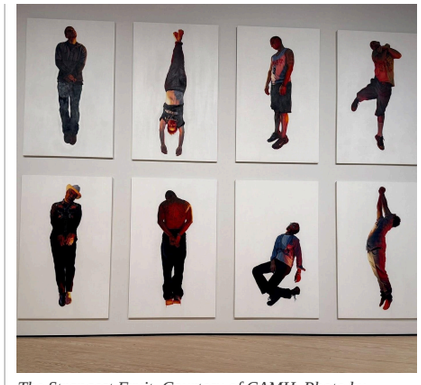

In the MacArthur Foundation video, Valdez addressed his realistic style and purpose, noting: "Realism for me is simply the way that I see– it's the way that I view the world; it's the way that I speak to the world around me. I use realism in a high-definition sense, as a means to make you look extremely closely so you cannot forget." Valdez has meticulously rendered figurative painting, portraiture, and historical experiences associated with Chicano, Mexican, and U.S. artistic traditions.

Art historians and art lovers recognize that Valdez's paintings do not simply recover neglected histories. Rather, as the MacArthur Foundation notes, in his Forbidden Fruit and Chavez Ravine paintings, Valdez's artwork investigates the persistence of injustice, violence, and resistance in the present.

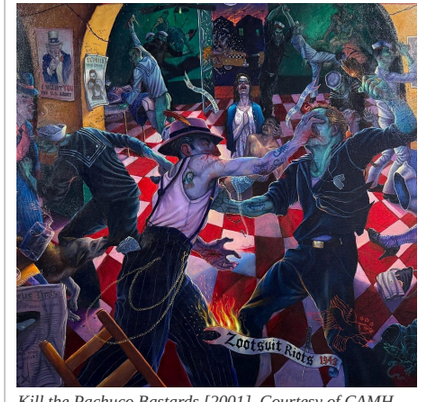

The Strangest Fruit series of paintings, one of which can be seen at the McNay Art Museum in San Antonio, confronts the history and continuing visual legacy of lynching through chilling images of young Latinos suspended against a vacant urban landscape. The Strangest Fruit paintings show young Latino males dressed in regular street clothes, some handcuffed, in a position suggesting they died as a result of being hanged by the neck or lynched, as were many Latinos and Blacks during the active period of the KKK in the early 20th century in Texas and throughout the South. The title of the series reflects the title of a 1939 song, "Strange Fruit" sung by the famous Black American Blues singer, Billie Holiday, describing the horrible lynching of Blacks in the U.S.

The MacArthur Award publicity describes Valdez as a visual artist who brilliantly depicts historical and contemporary scenes reflecting Latino experiences and the contemporary United States. El Chavez Ravine, a project Valdez developed with musician Ry Cooder, featured a 1950s ice-cream truck painted with images evoking the forced displacement of Mexican American residents from East Los Angeles's Chávez Ravine in advance of Dodger Stadium's construction.

Valdez was born in San Antonio and attended Burbank High School in the city's Southside. He received a full scholarship to the Rhode Island School of Design where he earned a B.F.A. in 2000. Harriett and I met Valdez the following summer when he had just completed the painting, Kill the Pachuco Bastards [2001]. We admired his talent and commissioned him to paint a Virgin of Guadalupe on plywood for an upcoming exhibit celebrating the beloved "Brown Madonna." We were pleasantly surprised when Valdez arrived at our home with a very large eight-by-four-foot 2-D dimensional wood painting of the Virgin. After enjoying the painting for 15 years in our home, we donated it to the McNay Art Museum, where it is on permanent display.

In a video posted on the MacArthur Foundation website, Valdez explains, "The majority of the works that I've created, the foundations are rooted in a personal lived experience in some way or another. This is a way of not only documenting my own personal lifetime, but perhaps one day the work offers a glimpse at a time and a place in the world." In 2004, the McNay Museum in San Antonio exhibited Stations, Valdez's suite of monumental charcoal drawings of boxers in positions of stations of the cross commemorating the crucifixion of Christ. At age 26, Valdez was the youngest artist to have had a solo exhibition at a major museum in San Antonio.

Valdez focuses on subjects that record his observations and experiences of life in the twenty-first century. He has created powerful images of American identity that confront injustice and inequity while imbuing his subjects with empathy and humanity. Richly detailed portraits of Latinos explore Latino history and identity, including difficult chapters of American history such as violence and discrimination against Latinos and the displacement of communities. Valdez states, "I aim to incite public remembrance and to impede distorted realities that I witness, like the social amnesia that surrounds us all." In 2017, The New York Times recognized Valdez for his powerful painting, "The City I," depicting a Ku Klux Klan gathering on the outskirts of an unknown metro area that suggests that Klan members could be our neighbors, co-workers, or ordinary people in our community.

I first wrote about Vincent Valdez in 2018 when he was invited to exhibit in The Face of Battle: Americans at War 9/11 to Now, at the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, D.C. That year Harriett and I visited the Portrait Gallery with several curators and learned of their efforts to include works of art that explored "the human costs of ongoing wars through portraiture."

Valdez's powerful black-and-white painting of a horse-drawn carriage carrying a U.S. flag-draped coffin hung outside the hallway leading to Valdez's section of the exhibit. The carriage seems to be moving slowly in a fog as an honor guard walks alongside. Valdez devoted six works to The Face of Battle exhibit, four of which used funeral procession imagery.

The curators at the National Portrait Gallery allowed Valdez to have a gallery room where one's eyes immediately focused on an oil portrait titled "John." This portrait, along with paintings of two different funeral processions and a video, represented a tribute to Valdez's close friend whose service in the Iraq-Afghanistan war cost him his life. Valdez responded by producing a video showing a slow-moving coffin mysteriously suspended without wheels six feet off the ground, traveling through the neighborhoods of South San Antonio where many young Latino war victims had lived.

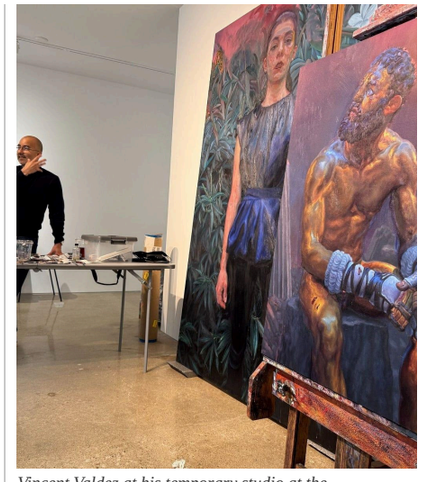

In 2022 I wrote about Valdez's painting, The Beginning Is Near, An American Trilogy: The City I (2015–2016). The painting is a 30-foot-long four-canvas work depicting contemporary Ku Klux Klan figures which was shown at the Musée du quai Branly–Jacques Chirac in Paris. Harriett and I had gone to the Paris Museum to see the exhibition Black Indians from New Orleans (Black Indians de La Nouvelle-Orléans). Valdez's large painting, The City, dominated the section addressing the U.S. civil-rights movement and the continuing legacy of white supremacy. The City painting at the Chirac in Paris and Valdez's other paintings in the beautiful exhibit catalog established Valdez as one of the few Chicano artists recognized internationally.

Valdez also received the Ford and Mellon Foundations Latinx Artist Fellowship (2022) and the Joan Mitchell Foundation Grant for Painters and Sculptors (2016). The New Americans series funded by the ACLU depicts images of people, communities, and scenes from across the country, creating what the artist describes as "a portrait of resistance."

Vincent Valdez has returned to San Antonio to give back to his community. His current formal college affiliation is with the Alamo Colleges District in San Antonio. He was named the district's inaugural Artist-in-Residence for 2025–26. La Línea/The Line: Works by Vincent Valdez opens with a public reception on Wednesday, October 7, 2026 at the Alamo Colleges District ACCESS Common Ground Gallery, 2222 N. Alamo St., San Antonio. Doors open at 5:30 p.m., with formal remarks scheduled for 6:00 p.m. The exhibition remains on view through February 26, 2027.

Nopalera Finds a Home in San Antonio

Founder Sandra Velasquez is bringing Mexican heritage into the luxury beauty conversation and encouraging Latino entrepreneurs to claim their worth.

"Don't let anyone convince you that your culture, your story, or your community is niche. There are millions of us. We are the market."

For Sandra Velasquez, the inspiration for Nopalera began with something familiar, a cactus growing in her parents' driveway. Looking at their nopalera, she saw more than a plant. She saw resilience, cultural history and an opportunity to build a beauty brand that placed Mexican identity at its center.

"I call it a divine download," Velasquez told La Prensa Texas. "Why has no one built a beauty brand around the nopal?" The cactus became both an ingredient and a symbol for the company she would create. "It doesn't just survive harsh conditions, it thrives in them," she said. "That's also our story as a community."

Through Nopalera, Velasquez set out to challenge what she describes as a longstanding assumption in the beauty industry: that luxury must come from Western Europe. Mexican art, craftsmanship, fragrances and color, she believed, deserved the same recognition. "I created Nopalera to position Mexican culture as a premium on the global beauty stage, and to make an entire community of people proud of their heritage," she said.

Velasquez launched the business during the pandemic from her Brooklyn apartment while raising her daughter and working three jobs. She had no outside funding, no savings and no contacts in the beauty industry. She enrolled in formulation school, earned her diploma and made the products herself throughout the first year. There was little room for uncertainty, but her purpose remained clear. "When you know the why, the how becomes a problem to solve, not a reason to quit," she said.

At 44, with a child to support, waiting for ideal conditions was not an option. Building Nopalera meant learning, working and moving forward with the resources she had.

That confidence would later become visible to a national audience during her appearance on Shark Tank. Velasquez declined two investment offers because she believed they undervalued her company. For her, the decision began long before she entered the room. "The lesson wasn't about negotiating tactics, it was about knowing your worth before you walk into the room," she said. "I had done the work. I knew my numbers, I knew my vision."

Today, San Antonio is home to Nopalera's next chapter. After 26 years in New York City, Velasquez found something here she had been missing: space to build a business and a community connected to her cultural roots. "San Antonio chose me as much as I chose it," she said. "When I arrived, I felt something I hadn't felt in a long time: room to breathe, and a genuine sense of community."

Raised in San Diego with a strong connection to Chicano culture, Velasquez said San Antonio's Mexican-American identity felt familiar. Being surrounded by people who live that culture daily has also strengthened her connection to the brand's purpose. "It keeps me honest," she said. "It reminds me who I'm building for."

At Nopalera, Velasquez says, cultural identity shapes the entire experience from ingredients and fragrances to Spanish names, colors and storytelling. She describes Flor de Madera as evoking Mexico City's ancient canals and Dulce de Cuerpo as drawing on copal, a resin associated with Mexican ceremonial traditions. "The design, the colors, the language on our packaging, none of it is decoration," she said. "It's a complete sensory world."

Her goal is to create products that invite discovery while offering a sense of familiarity to customers who recognize the cultural references. For someone connected to Mexico, she said, "we want it to feel like home."

Selling through Amazon's De Aquí Y Allá store has helped introduce the company's products and story to a broader audience, according to Velasquez. She says expanding nationally means remaining intentional about the heritage behind the brand. "The heart of the brand will always come from our culture, our values and the traditions that inspired Nopalera in the first place."

For young Latina and Latino entrepreneurs in San Antonio, Velasquez's advice is direct: believe in your work, understand its value and allow yourself to dream bigger. "I want them to understand that the obstacles you face are not proof that you don't belong," she said.

Her story offers a reminder that cultural identity can be a foundation for ownership, creativity and ambition. "Don't let anyone convince you that your culture, your story, or your community is niche," Velasquez said. "There are millions of us. We are the market."

Listening to Water: How Yanawana River Warriors Bridge Science and Ancestral Story

When we look at Water, mi gente, what is it that we actually see? What is it that we actually feel? What is it that we actually even know? For Rebecca Steele, President of The Well at Tecolote and Lead Integrator for the Yanawana River Warriors, our relationship to Water began long before it ever flowed through metal pipes. Born and raised right here in San Anto, a Communication Arts alum with generations rooted deeply in the soil of this very land, Steele partners with The Circle School, a local co-op school that has proudly been part of our city since the 1960s, as well as Brackenridge Park Conservancy, as she guides our youth to reconnect with our Land through an immersive environmental curriculum for middle schoolers. Now in its second year, the program continues to bridge practical science with Indigenous storytelling. That's right, mi gente, our Water has a story to tell. Maybe if we listened closely to Steele and the participants of the Yanawana River Warriors, we could learn a thing or two.

Through hands-on water sampling with the Rio Research Roundup and The Spanish and Science Club Network, students are not confined to outdated textbooks, four walls, and dictation. Under Steele's guidance, students are directly out in the field taking quality water samples from Yanwana (the San Antonio River), and this year, expanding to the Guadalupe River. The water samples help students learn and think critically about the water that feeds our animals and fills our cups because self-discovery is the best version of a learning experience.

One student in particular keeps reminding Steele that she needs to test his favorite fishing spot. He wants to write to the City Council about its condition. And for Steele, this is the whole point: "I have the power to go and make change or to be heard. And I also have the knowledge to back up what I'm talking about," she states. And she truly does. You can't beat lived experience, mi gente.

And the parents have noticed too. When Steele met with the school's parent board (co-op), they wanted to know what she could bring for adults. On October 12, families are invited to an Indigenous Peoples' Day Celebration at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, near where our River meets San Antonio Bay.

"We see the start of our river, and we also see the end… We have a really rich story that doesn't just begin with the Alamo," Steele reminds us.

Here's the part of the story we tend to forget about Water. What goes into our River, mi gente, goes somewhere… into the soil… into the aquifer… into the bay… then back to us. Steele and the Yanawana River Warriors are helping all of us remember that script.

"We have a really rich story that doesn't just begin with the Alamo." — Rebecca Steele

A PUBLICK NOTICE & DECLARATION OF MATRIMONY, HOME & ESTATE

Unto the Good Citizens of Medina County, Texas:

Let it be known unto all persons present, absent, curious, or kindly disposed that Valentino Kingsley Luna and his husband do hereby make publick declaration of their marriage and of the recent purchase of Rancho Flores Del Rio in Medina County, Texas, where they now establish their home and household.

In former times it was a custom to announce one's arrival and moving into a new home. In that spirit, and with due affection for ceremony, we do now proclaim that we have planted our roots upon Texas soil and begun this new chapter together.

Our union was solemnized at the historic Loretto Chapel in Santa Fe, New Mexico, where we stood as husband and husband and pledged ourselves one unto the other. The occasion marked not only our marriage, but the beginning of a life built upon love, dignity, companionship, and perseverance.

And because the laws and histories of Texas are not without curious contradictions, it seems only fitting that such a proclamation be made in the style of an old publick notice. Texas Penal Code Section 21.06, styled "Homosexual Conduct," yet lingers in the statute books, though it has long since been declared unconstitutional. Article I, Section 32 of the Texas Constitution also preserves language from another era. Yet here we stand nonetheless: married, hopeful, and unashamed.

At Rancho Flores Del Rio we intend to build a peaceful home, tend the land entrusted unto us, and live openly and honestly in the community we now call home.

Let the record therefore show:

We are here.
We are married.
We have purchased our home.
We are Texans.

Thus proclaimed with affection, dignity, and a touch of lawful mischief,

Valentino Kingsley Luna
and His Husband
Rancho Flores Del Rio

IN LOVING MEMORY • EN MEMORIA

Ernesto Rocha III

October 29, 1978 – September 23, 2026

IN THE CARE OF SUNSET NORTHWEST FUNERAL HOME

"His presence filled a room, and his memory will continue to fill the hearts of everyone fortunate enough to have known him."

Ernesto Rocha III, affectionately known as Ernie, Ern, and lovingly as "Baby Ernie," passed away on September 23, 2026, at the age of 47.

Born on October 29, 1978, in San Antonio, Texas, Ernie was a proud San Antonio native, born and raised in the city he called home.

Ernie was preceded in death by his beloved pets, Dexter and Dugas Rocha, who were truly members of the family and held a special place in his heart.

He is survived by his loving wife, Angela Galindo; his parents, Ernesto Rocha, Jr. and Angela Rocha; his brother, Michael Rocha; his sister-in-law, Cassie Rocha; his mother-in-law, Priscilla Sanchez-Hurt; his brother-in-law, Vincent Galindo; his sister-in-law, Margaret Lindsey; and the many family members and friends whose lives were made brighter simply by knowing him.

Ernie had a deep love for music. He loved playing guitar, singing, attending concerts, and, whenever a microphone was within reach, showing everyone why he was a true karaoke star. He was a big-time sports fan, a lover of great BBQ, and an avid collector of sneakers, sports memorabilia, and far too many other things to possibly list. He was also someone who was always searching for a new place, a new experience, or simply another reason to have a good time with the people he loved.

But more than anything he enjoyed or collected, Ernie will be remembered for the way he made people feel.

He had a remarkable ability to light up any room he entered. His smile was unforgettable, his hugs were the kind you could feel long after they ended, and his laugh was impossible not to join. With an incredible sense of humor and a natural gift for making people laugh, Ernie brought joy wherever he went.

He never seemed to meet a stranger. Ernie could make a friend anywhere, at any time, and somehow had a way of making each person feel like they were his best friend. In many ways, he was everyone's best friend.

Behind all that humor and larger-than-life personality was an incredibly sweet and kind heart. He was a loving and caring husband, a devoted animal lover, and a loyal friend to so many.

Ernie's life was far too short, but the love, laughter, friendship, music, memories, and joy he gave so freely cannot be measured in years.

Those who loved him will remember his smile.
They will remember his laugh.
They will remember his hugs.
They will remember the way he could make an ordinary moment unforgettable.

And most of all, they will remember how deeply Ernie loved and was loved.

His presence filled a room, and his memory will continue to fill the hearts of everyone fortunate enough to have known him.
