La Prensa Texas

This grass roots publication is the life source for a community that is not easily afforded viable access to diverse and accessible media. San Antonio and the surrounding counties have become accustomed to relevant news brought to them in both English and Spanish since 1913.

Let's Talk About It Being Latino is the best

Being Latino is the best. I don't know any other culture that shows affection the way we do. Old school us learned tough love when it was legal. We heard some of the harshest things and it was funny. We never got offended. I love being Mexican American. What is a popular saying you grew up hearing? Let's talk about it...

Maryann Chapparo Lopez: "Come caca. When they don't want to eat what I cook."

Candy G Stewart: "Aye Dios mio"

Brandi Clemens: "Put some Vicks all over your body! It will make you feel better."

Graciela Cruz: "Chingow madre when you stub your toe."

Cpt Panda: "When trying to park, my dad would say "dale, el chingaso avisa."

Susana Corral: "Me-Mom I have a cough/Mom-ponte Vicks."

Natalia Zúñiga: " smacking your lips and saying AAAAH-HHHHH apoco??"

Aaron Salinas: "Si dios quiere" my mom says it all the time."

Robert Moya: "Let me rub the egg on you."

Daniel Manrique: " CHINGON, From the unique verb CHINGAR. That's the most (go to any direction) slang word in (Mexican) Spanish. I will definately wear a shirt that says: "AH CHINGA!"

Scott Richeson: "Chinga Tu Madre. I believe it means "remember to call your mother."

Olga Jackson: "Pinche! My favorite!"

Abraham Israel VO: "El Huevón Trabaja Doble!"(The lazy work double); When you try to get shortcuts to do or make something...and it does not work at all, then you have to do it in the right, traditional and proven way."

Leonard Geri Sotelo: "Got to love my culture!!!! " get the broom " and the egg. Remove all evil spirits!!"

Jerry Lumbreras: "No mames way."

Danny Salazar: "We're leaving right now "/Translation: "I just got out of the shower" "We're halfway there" Translation: "We just left."

Jose Villagomez: "Con huevos," we scream this at work everyday."

Andrew Soto: "Keep acting that way and the Cucuy is going to get you."

Adrian Rivera: "Aqui vengo llegando" when we are really just leaving our house."

Deana M Osuna: "Chingasé! (Or maybe that's just in my clan...thx grandma)"

Gene Lucero: "I'll give you something to cry about."

Brandie Dominguez: "Just drink 7 up you'll be fine."

Carlos Efrain Martinez "The bigger the pansa, the better the chansa."

Bertha Gurrola: "Me- can I go to my friends./Mom- you have to clean first."

Liz Mata: "See??!! This way you learn!"

Emilio del Rio: "That's what you get, do it again!."

Kathie Acuña-Huerta: " "La tuya". I say it when someone passes by and honks."

Benji Ben-: "Toma Cabron."

James Blowers: "What happened?"

Rosanne Enriquez: "Aye whey."

Lucy Ortegon-Salgado: "Para lo que tu vienes, yo ya fui y vine".In other words "you think you're smart, I have been there and done that."

Steve De Yuma: "Tell me who your friends are and I'll tell you who you are."

Ausencio JR Roch: "Why are you crying?!"

Artist statement:

“I am a multi-disciplinary artist from the South Texas frontera. My process for making art has been informed by my experience growing up and working in a family owned and operated flower & ceramic shop. This required me to be involved in all the aspects of fabrication, production and distribution and taught me to jump to the medium needed to do the job. I make work that is based on meso-american mythology intermingled with science fiction, outer space and stories of my ancestors. I take icons and transform them revealing a connection through the past, present and future—sometimes it is obvious, sometimes ambiguous. My work is meant to exist in the 3rd space of reality where anything is possible.”

Declaración del artista:

“Soy un artista multidisciplinario de la frontera del sur de Texas. Mi proceso para hacer arte ha sido informado por mi experiencia creciendo y trabajando en un taller de cerámica y flores de propiedad y operación familiar. Esto requirió involucrame en todos los aspectos de fabricación, producción y distribución y me enseñó a saltar al medio necesario para hacer el trabajo. Hago trabajo basado en la mitología meso-americana entremezclada con la ciencia ficción, el espacio exterior y las historias de mis antepasados. Tomo íconos y los transformó revelando una conexión a través del pasado, presente y futuro, a veces es obvio, a veces ambiguo. Mi trabajo está destinado a existir en el tercer espacio de la realidad donde todo es posible.”

The cover art piece is called El Trio: Uno-Dos-Tres | 34” x 80” | mixed media on panel | 2012

“A good example of this multidimensional effect is El Trio: Uno-Dos-Tres, a 2012 mixed media painting. In it El Mariachi Lacho appears made of gold, standing in the splendor of the city next to him again and again. He represents the rich confluence of San Antonio through the visual allusion to the golden generations of those who came before. This is similar to the channels of skulls flowing and splashing through the turquoise skies above the mariachis. My father came to Texas at the turn of the century. Like many Mexican immigrants, his family was escaping from the turmoil of the Mexican revolution of 1910 to El Norte. They brought with them the tenacity for survival. This determination enabled my father to endure through his many experiences as a Mexican-American in the Southwest United States. I represent my father, Horacio Sanchez Valderas, in the multidimensional manner as he embodies those that came before him and will come after him.”

WIC Provides Nutritious Food and Breastfeeding Support for Families and Their Children

Metro Health Encourages Families to Sign Up Now for No Cost Program Provided by Mission Park Funeral Chapels Cherry Ridge

Briana Gonzalez knows how expensive it can be to feed her 2-year-old daughter and 1-year-old son. But thanks to Metro Health's WIC Program, the young mom can provide the nutritious food their growing bodies need with cereal, milk, and other nutritious items.

"WIC has helped me so much," said Gonzalez, who has been with the nutrition program for the past two years. "When my children were infants, I received formula through the program. I also enjoy the on-line classes. They helped me to know what to expect when you become a mom and what types of healthy foods to feed my kids."

The Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children also known as WIC is a nutrition program for pregnant, breastfeeding women and families with children 5 years old and younger. Metro Health operates 10 WIC clinics throughout San Antonio and serves about 31,000 families per month. It can serve a maximum of 41,500 families each month.

As part of the program, registered dietitian Ana Kraft visits with families at the clinics to offer nutrition counseling. "When we enroll clients, we spend time making simple changes for the benefit of the family,"

she said. "We encourage them to make healthy food choices. We also have on-line classes we encourage them to participate in from home."

Kraft said they also address parents' concerns about children who are picky eaters, as well as those who don't eat enough vegetables or who are not getting enough physical activity. WIC also provides families with healthy recipes that are low in sodium and high in fiber and iron to encourage them to cook more meals at home. "

Maggie Saldana, WIC registered dietitian, explained that WIC provides families with infant formula, as well as cereal, cheese, yogurt, whole grain bread and pasta, and whole grain tortillas. "Currently, pregnant, post-partum women and children are receiving additional fruits and vegetables," she said.

WIC also offers breastfeeding support with the assistance from Christina Padilla, internal board certified lactation consultant. "A lot of women need individualized care," Padilla said. "We do a lot of high-risk consultations for moms who have breastfeeding problems, such those who have mastitis or infants with cleft palates. We make sure they have communication with a healthcare provider to make a proper diagnosis."

Many times, Padilla added, the issue that a mother has with breastfeeding can be easy to resolve. "Moms are so grateful when we're able to help them," she said.

Gonzalez, meanwhile, has known about WIC since she was a child. "My mom received assistance from WIC," she said. "We got formula, fruits and vegetables, whole milk and cereal. It really helped our family a lot."

Estudiantes Universitarios Inscritos Para El Semestre De Primavera Para Disfrutar Del Servicio Ilimitado De Via El Programa U-Pass De Via Ofrece A Los Estudiantes Universitarios, Profesores Y Personal Opciones De Viaje Gratis

Por Lorraine Pulido, Ph.D.

A medida que los estudiantes, profesores y personal de los colegios y universidades locales participantes regresan a la instrucción en persona en sus respectivos campus, pueden disfrutar de una gran ventaja para sus horarios de primavera: acceso gratuito e ilimitado al servicio de autobús en cualquier lugar del área de servicio de VIA con el VIA U-Pass.

A través de las asociaciones de sus escuelas con el programa VIA U-Pass, más de 90 000 estudiantes, profesores y miembros del personal de la Universidad de Texas en San Antonio (UTSA) y todas las universidades de Alamo (San Antonio College, Palo Alto College, Northwest Vista College, St. Philip's College y Northeast Lakeview College), así como los estudiantes inscritos en la Universidad Our Lady of the Lake, la Universidad del Verbo Encarnado y la incubadora tecnológica local CodeUp, tienen acceso gratuito a viajes ilimitados en el servicio regular de autobús en todo el año escolar, incluidas las sesiones de primavera y verano.

El VIA U-Pass está diseñado para brindar un acceso conveniente al transporte público y para ayudar a abordar los desafíos de la creciente población estudiantil con opciones de estacionamiento limitadas y pagas en el campus o cerca de él. El U-Pass no requiere la compra de un estudiante. Se proporciona a todos los estudiantes inscritos en los colegios y universidades participantes a través de sus asociaciones con VIA.

El VIA U-Pass también se puede utilizar para los servicios VIA Link. En noviembre de 2021, VIA agregó su tercera zona bajo demanda de VIA Link para brindar servicio que conecta un área de 14.4 millas cuadradas a lo largo del Loop 1604 desde Babcock hasta Culebra y en Bandera Road desde el Loop 1604 hasta Mainland, incluido el campus principal de UTSA y Northwest Vista College. El servicio VIA Link reemplaza las rutas fijas en la zona con un servicio más frecuente por las mismas tarifas que el servicio de autobús regular. Los clientes pueden reservar viajes utilizando una aplicación gratuita, un portal en línea o por teléfono. Los pasajeros pueden viajar a cualquier parte de la zona o a puntos de transferencia convenientes para conectarse con el sistema VIA completo. La flexibilidad proporciona una mejor frecuencia, reduce los tiempos de viaje, minimiza las distancias a pie y ofrece más lugares para recoger y dejar. La expansión del servicio a pedido es parte del plan Keep SA Moving de VIA que fue aprobado abrumadoramente por los votantes en noviembre de 2020. Es parte de un plan para brindar opciones de transporte inteligente, utilizando tecnología y asociaciones para un mejor servicio.

Los estudiantes con teléfonos inteligentes pueden acceder al U-Pass a través de la aplicación go-

Mobile+ de VIA. Los estudiantes de Alamo Colleges que no tienen teléfonos inteligentes pueden abordar el autobús presentando su tarjeta de identificación de la escuela. Los estudiantes de las universidades participantes que no cuenten con teléfonos inteligentes pueden abordar el autobús presentando su identificación con una calcomanía VIA proporcionada por su escuela.

Los pasajeros aún deben usar una máscara, de acuerdo con las pautas establecidas por los Centros para el Control y la Prevención de Enfermedades (CDC) y un mandato del gobierno federal. VIA continuará con la limpieza diaria y mejorada de todos los vehículos y alentará a la comunidad a observar buenas prácticas de higiene, incluido el lavado frecuente de manos y el desinfectante de manos.

Para obtener más información sobre el U-Pass o el Pase Semestral de VIA, visite VIAinfo.net.

Las escuelas interesadas en asociarse con VIA para ofrecer el U-Pass pueden llamar al 210-362-2020. Para obtener más información sobre VIA Link, visite VIAinfo.net/LINK y descargue el folleto de VIA Link.

VIA brinda opciones de transporte seguras y confiables que ponen oportunidades al alcance de millones de pasajeros cada año. VIA sirve a 14 ciudades miembro y las áreas no incorporadas del condado de Bexar, operando los siete días de la semana en 92 rutas y opciones de movilidad a pedido que conectan a nuestra comunidad, respaldan la vitalidad económica y mejoran la calidad de vida en toda nuestra región. En 2019, VIA proporcionó casi 37 millones de viajes en San Antonio y el condado de Bexar y continúa brindando un servicio esencial en un entorno seguro. Latinos in Sports: Competing in the NFL and Super Bowl

By Dr. Ricardo Romo

Tony Romo serving as this year's Super Bowl CBS broadcaster will provide a play-by-play analysis of the big game, a television first for a Latino. When the Los Angeles Rams meet the Cincinnati Bengals on their home field in Southern California, millions of Latino football fans are expected to attend and watch the east-west matchup. Tony Romo, a third-generation Mexican American, played for the Dallas Cowboys over the years 2003-2016. He was selected four times for the All-Pro Bowl and led the NFL ratings as a passer and in pass completions in 2014.

California's five million Latinos may boost the viewing audience record to over 100 million and perhaps contribute to surpassing the 114 million viewers in 2015 when the New England Patriots defeated the Seattle Seahawks. A vast number of the 60 million Latinos in the nation follow sporting events. Citing Nielsen data, Rolling Stone reported: "94% of surveyed Latino men call themselves sports fans and 56 percent of those considered themselves dedicated fans." In terms of sports preferences, Latinos listed basketball [MBA], baseball [MLB], and football [NFL] in that order.

During Tony Romo's tenure as quarterback for the famed Dallas Cowboys, the team never reached the Super Bowl. Dr. Mario Longoria, one of the authors of Latinos in American Football, provided a list he compiled of all 49 Latinos who have played or coached in a Super Bowl game. The most famous Latino quarterbacks to play in the Super Bowl include Joe Kapp and Tom Flores [1970], George Mira [1972], and Jim Plunkett [1981]. Flores [1970] and Plunkett [1981] played on winning Super Bowl teams.

Mike Valdes-Fauli, a member of the Forbes Council, argues that sports can be a unifying force in our society. He claims that sports are "helping people from diverse backgrounds, ethnicities, genders, ages, and even political affiliations come together in shared spirit." Professional soccer has done that for many countries around the world. Valdes-Fauli could have added that NFL football has been bringing people together from different nations for more than a generation. Mexico has the largest NFL fan base of any foreign country in the world with 28.3 million fans.

Mexican NFL fans began following American football during the late 1970s and early 1980s when kickers Danny Villanueva, Efen Herrera, and Rafael Septien played for the Dallas Cowboys. Two Latino Dallas Cowboys, kicker Efen Herrera [1978] and defensive lineman Tony Casillas

Dr. Mario Longoria with former Dallas Cowboy defensive lineman Tony Casillas. Casillas played in Super Bowl XXVII and XXVIII. Dr. Mario Longoria collection.

[1993, 1994], both played on winning Super Bowl teams. The Dallas Cowboys became “America’s Team” when they became the first NFL team to broadcast their games to every region of the United States. Dating back to the 1980s Cowboys games were even broadcast in Mexico. The Cowboys are the favorite team in Mexico and Central America. However, Latino football fans on both sides of the border are more than warming up to the Los Angeles Rams, a team situated in America’s largest Latino community. Football fans in Mexico City will tune in to the Super Bowl game this year in large numbers because of their familiarity with Los Angeles and the L.A. Rams. According to Entravision Communications, Mexico City now has the 7th largest NFL fan base of any city in North America.

II. Dr. Mario Longoria’s Comments on his new book.

In our book, Latinos in American Football: Path Breakers on the Gridiron, 1927 to the Present, Jorge Iber and I explore the issues of citizenship, immigration, racism, and other areas of inequality that have historically confronted the Latino citizen/athlete, both the native-born and those who immigrated to the United States in search of better opportunities.

Professor Jorge Iber and I uncovered a lost history of Latino athletes competing in college and professional football dating back nearly 100 years. We found hundreds of stories of Latino athletes whose hard work, dedication, and perseverance helped them overcome substantial hardships and obstacles placed in their path to success in professional football.

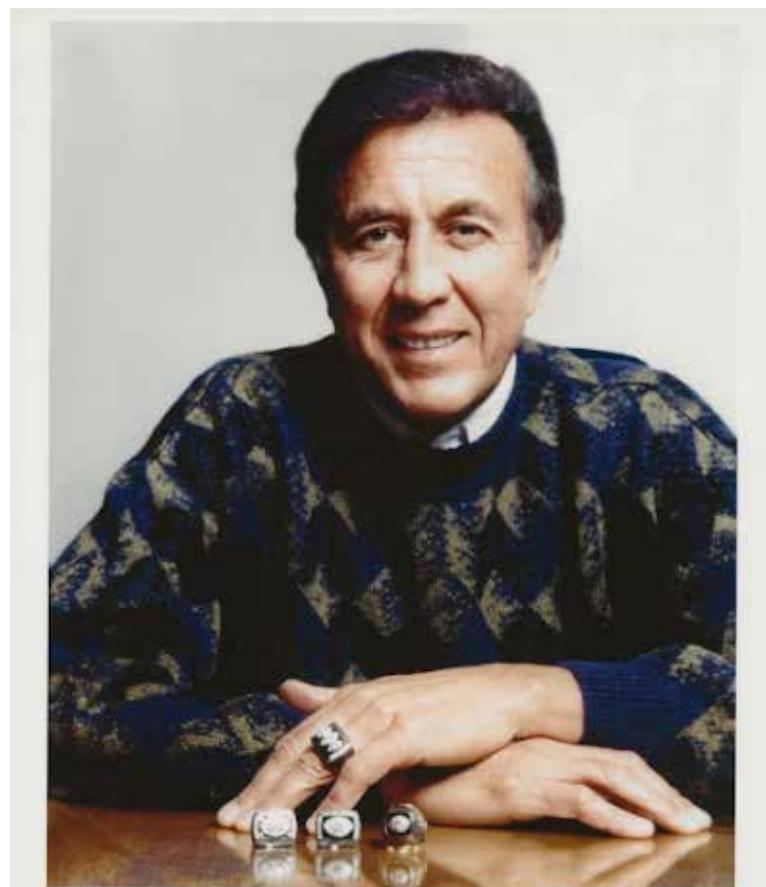

We combined over 34 years of research in the book to learn and verify that Latinos took a keen interest in the sport of football as early as the 1910s, and Latino athletes persevered to compete in the sport at all levels.

Our book, Latinos in American Football, recovers a lost history based on substantive primary source information that disproves stereotypes and poorly formed assumptions about Latino athletes. We present a well-researched and documented history of the Latino’s experience and success in the sport of football at all levels of competition since the 1920s.

In the book’s Introduction and Chapter One, we discuss a series of historical commentary that describes the negative perceptions people had toward Latinos and other people of color as they journeyed through American society. The information we gathered from records and archives clearly documented numerous views of minorities the greater society perceived as different from themselves. Overall, racially motivated studies from the past and today continue to refer to Latinos in a variety of negative terms and descriptions that should not be tolerated.

The story begins with a Cuban immigrant, Ignacio Saturnino Molinet, sent to finishing school in New Jersey; then to Ithaca, New York where he attended Cornell University. At Cornell, Molinet became an outstanding football player earning varsity letters and catching the attention of a scout from the Frankford Yellow Jackets of the old NFL in the summer of 1927.

Tom Flores - Coach Super Bowl Rings

Tom Flores with his four Super Bowl rings [1970 as a quarterback with Kansas City Chiefs; 1977, Assistant coach with the Oakland Raiders; 1981, Head Coach with Oakland Raiders; and 1984, Head Coach with Los Angeles Raiders]. Dr. Mario Longoria collection.

After a series of negotiations, Molinet played full-back for a single season in professional football. The historical significance of Molinet’s participation is that he is the first Latino in professional football and one of several Latinos to enter the sport during the 1920s and play at the collegiate level.

Since then there have been hundreds of Latinos who competed in football at all levels. Our research identified over 393 Chicano/Latino/Hispanic/Spanish Surnamed (CLHSS) athletes participating in various professional football leagues since 1927; and we have recently gathered statistics of collegiate football athletes for the 2015 season that identify 261 Latino players and 12 coaches.

The number of Latino athletes playing collegiate football has decreased since 2015 to 205 players although the number of athletic directors and head and assistant coaches has increased to 15.

This Latino football history adds dimension and humanity to the current incomplete American football story. Our research fills the void in one of America’s favorite sports and acknowledges the participation and contributions of a very diverse group of Latino athletes who not only wanted the opportunity to learn and play the game but also demanded the opportunity to excel as athletes.

Ghostbusters Afterlife: The Parapsychology of It All

Interview by Yvette Tello
Article by Celinda De La Fuente

Since 1984, the indelible answer to the question “Who you gonna call?” will always be Ghostbusters. Exactly 37 years after the initial installment of the franchise that is synonymous with nostalgia, we welcome this new story which appears to be a love letter to all fans. We accept the new faces we meet throughout the narrative of Ghostbusters Afterlife, and are comforted with a heartwarming delight by those who returned to reprise their roles. Whether it be the family you are born to, or the family you choose, the franchise reminds us of the importance of family all around. It is not surprising that this message continues to reverberate, for older and newer generations alike. Dan Aykroyd has stated himself that his work on Ghostbusters is “the family business,” considering the amount of paranormal research his family has collected over the decades. Now that family legacy is immortalized and continues to live on.

Whether you believe in the paranormal or not, no one can deny the fascination this world has with the supernatural. Interim Publisher of La Prensa Texas, Yvette Tello, was able to discuss such matters with Parapsychologist Christopher Chacon who has traveled the world studying paranormal phenomena. With an extensive background in Parapsychology (a field of study investigating the existence of the paranormal), Chacon is brought on to consult on cases when these otherworldly situations cannot be explained scientifically.

“We got to use unimaginable types of technology to really study this phenomena, and try to understand them, and granted, a good 70-80% of the cases we encountered had rational explanations... that leaves another 20-30% that, even with that technology and with all those great scientist involved, we still could not explain these phenomena,” he states thinking about the technology used throughout the Ghostbusters franchise.

Though he and those he has worked with have found logical explanations for many of the cases they investigate, he is still befuddled by some, “In the real world, you don’t still know what you’re dealing with. There are so many unknowns, even at the end of the day, after we’ve encountered something, we’re usually left with way more questions,” Chacon adds.

Nowadays, with reality shows following the paranormal for entertainment purposes, more and more people are open to accepting the unexplained. However, “[w]hen someone has a belief, to try to convince them otherwise, all the evidence in the world is not going to do that. It’s going to require their own transition from one set of beliefs to another.”

Whether it’s through entertainment, the media, or real-life experiences, we all encounter the paranormal in some sort of fashion through its influences on this modern world.

When Frogs Fly and Children Cry

By Lauren Browning

There's plenty of stiff competition for the record, but this latest GET It podcast episode may cover a wider range of topics than ever before. In February's episode of the GET It podcast (numbered 49), Texas podcasters Roy Aguillon, Ryan Thompson and Kevin Prince are joined by special guests Dr. Janis Edralin, Family Counselor, and Judge Mary Lou Alvarez, the Democratic incumbent candidate for District Judge, 45th Judicial District Court.

Of course, whenever any conversation starts with a discussion about frogs orbiting an artificial moon in China, it's probably inevitable that some major ground (and space) will be covered. But between the good-natured laughs that this episode offers, there's also important information about child welfare that may be just what you or your family needs to hear the most. And, you'll get to know the incumbent Democratic candidate for District Judge, 45th Judicial District in our March primary elections too.

Before we go any further, we'd like to encourage you to research all the candidates in the upcoming primary elections, and then get out to vote for the candidates that you think will best represent you, your family and your community. It's been said a million times before, and can't be said too often that "democracy is not a spectator sport." Voter participation is required for our democracy to work and it's also a good thing for you personally because Tu voto es tu voz. It's true - your vote is indeed your voice.

Need some pointers to help you GET informed and GET out to vote? To get started, just look on the Bexar County Elections web page (<https://www.bexar.org/1568/Elections-Department>) for generic sample ballots for both the Democratic and Republican Primary Elections. While you're there, you can also check the status of your voter registration and find out where you want to go to vote. We recommend that, if possible, you vote early so you can visit any of the voting centers. If you wait until Election Day, then there will just be one place that you can vote. Early voting runs Monday, February 14, 2022 to Friday, February 25 and Election Day is Tuesday, March 1. GET It!

That said, let's get back to the pod. Ryan voiced ethical concerns about the whole concept of constructing an artificial moon complete with low gravity. No one seemed too worried about the poor frog getting dizzy from orbiting around that new moon. Still, you might not want a bunch of evil people out there doing evil things with their artificial moons. Or, maybe you do. Regardless, it's often a wise move to consider if new regulations are needed to keep bold new capabilities under control. Judge Alvarez didn't bang the gavel on this one. So, you decide.

Judge Alvarez did, however, discuss her involvement in San Antonio's 'Family Violence Prevention Program' (ph: 210-335-2768) which has the mission protecting victims, preventing violence and empowering survivors of domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking and human trafficking. She also explained why more foster families are needed, and assessed some of the benefits and shortcomings of legal procedures to help children in abusive, hurtful situations.

Do you know of any children who are suffering from abuse and neglect? It's a tough subject, but it's even tougher to live it. Fortunately, there are people out there ready and able to help. Reach out. We're all in this together.

Kanye West has been in the spotlight for how he handled himself when he wasn't invited to his daughter's birthday party. Kanye went public with his family tensions in a big way. What would you do? Storm in and crash the party? Send your daughter a present but find something else to do that day? Or? Roy brought in an expert, Dr. Janis Edralin (Family Counselor), to discuss this situation and the best possible response. She gives her expert advice on what Kanye, as well as you, should do when painful conflicts arise in the family.

The GET It podcast is produced by Growing Empowered Together (GET), a 501c3 nonprofit, in partnership with La Prensa Texas and The Carpenters Apprentice. This episode was sponsored by Judge Mary Lou Alvarez and IAQ Cleaning. You can listen to this episode of the GET It podcast anytime wherever you listen to podcasts, or listen online at www.getit.libsyn.com. And, you can listen to any of the other forty-eight other episodes anytime too. It's an entertaining show that could really make a difference in someone's life. Maybe even yours. And, take note, history is made in episode 49, because Ryan finally did manage to get in the last word.
