Let's Talk About It

everything I could find about cancer, taking online courses, and it became a big part of my life and career choice. My aunt's memory is still with me, and it's a constant reminder of why I'm so passionate about fighting cancer."

Ward Chartier: "Interesting question since for the past few years I have been engaged in significant personal change after my cancer experience. For a long time, I worked in manufacturing operations management, but between 2009 and 2013, I had to deal with a type of cancer called diffuse large B-cell lymphoma. This involved surgery to remove a tumor, radiation therapy, chemotherapy, and a stem cell transplant. The whole thing cost about $550,000, but luckily, my insurance covered most of it. During my recovery from the stem cell transplant, when my immune system was practically at zero, I had a lot of time to think about my life. I decided to do three things: consult, give guest lectures at universities, and volunteer with cancer patients. I did this for a while, but over time, my interest in consulting and lecturing faded. In 2018, I moved to Malaysia and began volunteering at a cancer center in a hospital. I also took a seminar to improve my ability to help cancer patients. I've made some big changes in my life; I got rid of most of my work-related stuff and learned to let go of professional habits that didn't help me in my new role. I've become more empathetic, and I'm trying to use less harsh language. I'm looking forward to completing more levels of the seminar. While I do have some lingering side effects from my cancer treatments, they don't significantly limit me. I can't climb ladders, for example, but overall, I wake up happy and stress-free every day."

Jane Hope: "I was born in China. My father was a smoke addict. He smoked almost everywhere and anytime. I hated him and his cigarettes. I did not know that one day his smoke would lead to lung cancer in my mother. My mother was found with lung cancer shortly after I found my first job. We had plans to travel around the world, but now I am just trying to figure out how I can help her; how can her cancer be cured and what should I do to make more money? She is my only love in the world. I can't lose her."

Nesterenko Anastasiia: "I didn't have cancer myself, but both my aunt and my mom did. My aunt had bowel cancer when I was a kid, and I remember taking care of her and making her soup. Sadly, she passed away from it. What hurt even more was that my family kept this secret from me for two years. This was the first time I realized that people we love can die, and that my mom could keep such a big secret. Later on, my mom got cancer too. I saw her lose her hair, wear a special device to collect lymph, and struggle because my dad had left us. She was often sick, and our relationship became strained because she wouldn't tell me the truth about her condition. All of this pushed me to learn as much as I could about cancer, to understand it better. I also realized that I might be at risk of getting cancer myself because of my family history. So, I started studying candid conversations with people I trust, were direct results of a cancer diagnosis. And they definitely changed my life."

Scarlett Trillia: "At 16, I started using hormonal contraceptives to avoid pregnancy. After a trip to Europe, I noticed unusual belly growth, but didn't think much of it. I experienced pain in my pelvic area and digestive issues, but didn't see a doctor. One day, severe pain sent me to the ER, and I was told I was pregnant with complications. Surgery revealed a tumor that was surgically removed. I was diagnosed with a rare cancer called dysgerminoma originating from my ovary germ cells. I underwent tests and monitoring for years. However, it turned out I wasn't actually pregnant but had a tumor producing a pregnancy hormone. Years later, I faced abdominal discomfort and irregular periods. An ultrasound showed a mass in my pelvis. I struggled to get a clear diagnosis and faced financial and immigration issues. My symptoms improved temporarily, but I later discovered a mass had grown. After surgery, I found out it was cancerous. The recovery was painful, with complications. I started chemotherapy and lost my fertility. Despite the challenges, I appreciate life and focus on healing. I remain positive and trust in my treatment. Today, I'm grateful for my health and the perspective I've gained through this journey."

Shubham Chauhan: "My mother was hospitalized on July 25th, 2018, after a long battle with cancer that had begun in 2014. The doctors proposed inserting a tube into her lungs to remove accumulated fluid, with the hope of relieving her breathing difficulties. However, her condition suddenly worsened, leading to her admission to the medical ICU. Doctors let us see mom. My mom wanted to say something to us but the doctors didn't allow to take off her oxygen mask but we understood from her gestures that she was saying that she could not breathe and telling dad to do something and to save her. The doctors said this was the end. Her heartbeats were 180-190 per minute (like a person running). Now the question was how long can a person run? There was not even a single part of her body which was not cut. Hands, legs, breast, neck, lungs, heart every part was affected either by cancer or by chemo. She died that day. I promised my mom that I would always make you proud and be a good person by helping others. I ask all of you, please respect your parents and don't ever take them for granted. Spend more time with them. Go out with them. Take pictures, make videos, make memories because one day those will be the only things you will be left. I can't cry in front of my dad and sister so I wrote this answer so that I can distract myself from all the negative thoughts and always feel positive after looking at this."

Latino Artist Jesus Treviño's Borderland Perspectives

By Dr. Ricardo Romo

Jesus Treviño grew up in Brownsville, Texas, a mid-sized town at the southmost point of the U.S.-Mexico border. His art reflects growing up in the borderland region with its cactus and intense brush country along the Rio Grande River. His first serious study of art came when he attended Texas Southmost College in his hometown. While learning how to draw and paint, he also became familiar with the works of Latino artists from Texas. He recalls drawing inspiration from the Chicano "bato" painting series of Cesar Martinez and the powerful photography of Deliah Montoya. Montoya portrays the Southwest people whose heritage is a mix of Native American, Aztec Mexican, and Spanish lineage.

Treviño developed a great interest in art following a summer art program in Florence, Italy. Upon receiving a degree in art from the University of Texas-Brownsville, he enrolled in an MFA program in Painting and Drawing at UT Austin. In his first year of graduate school, he discovered how little he knew about American art. Treviño credits UT Austin art professor Scherezade Garcia-Vazquez Garcia, a native of the Dominican Republic, with helping him rediscover his Latino heritage.

For many years Treviño felt disconnected from the Mexican side of the Borderlands. He spoke recently about his efforts to gain a greater understanding of Mexican life. "I am engaging familial histories: histories of injustice and collective memory by building a landscape of painting and art objects which hold the memory of what was and reveals traces of what remains."

In a recent exhibit, "La Carreta Fading in the Sun—memories of a family ranch in Matamoros,

"Tamaulipas," Treviño introduces seventeen pieces varying from painting to sculpture. The artist expects people to "let their imaginations fly and, most importantly, think of these artworks as if they were part of their own remembrances or consequently, reminisce about their personal memories as if they were alike to these art pieces."

Every year the celebration of Hispanic Heritage rises to new heights. It is exciting to see young and established artists recognized. Jesus Treviño is one of the featured artists in the Chicano Park Museum Exhibit in San Diego titled Son de Allá y Son de Acá.

Tips for Halloween That's All Treats!

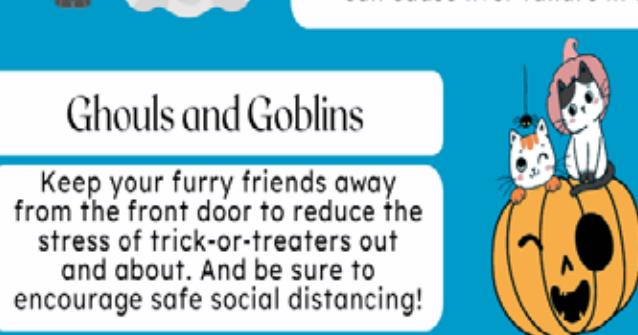

Vamping the Home

Keep fall plants such as pumpkins and corn out of reach. If your pet eats them, they can cause upset tummies!

Tricky Treats

Chocolate can be dangerous for dogs and cats. Also be on the lookout for candies with the artificial sweetener xylitol, as it can cause liver failure in dogs.

Ghouls and Goblins

Keep your furry friends away from the front door to reduce the stress of trick-or-treaters out and about. And be sure to encourage safe social distancing!

Costumed Cuties

Have your pet try on costumes before Halloween night. Costumes should not restrict movement or cause any distress.

Under Wraps

Make sure your pet has ID, is microchipped, and wears their collar on All Hallows' Eve.

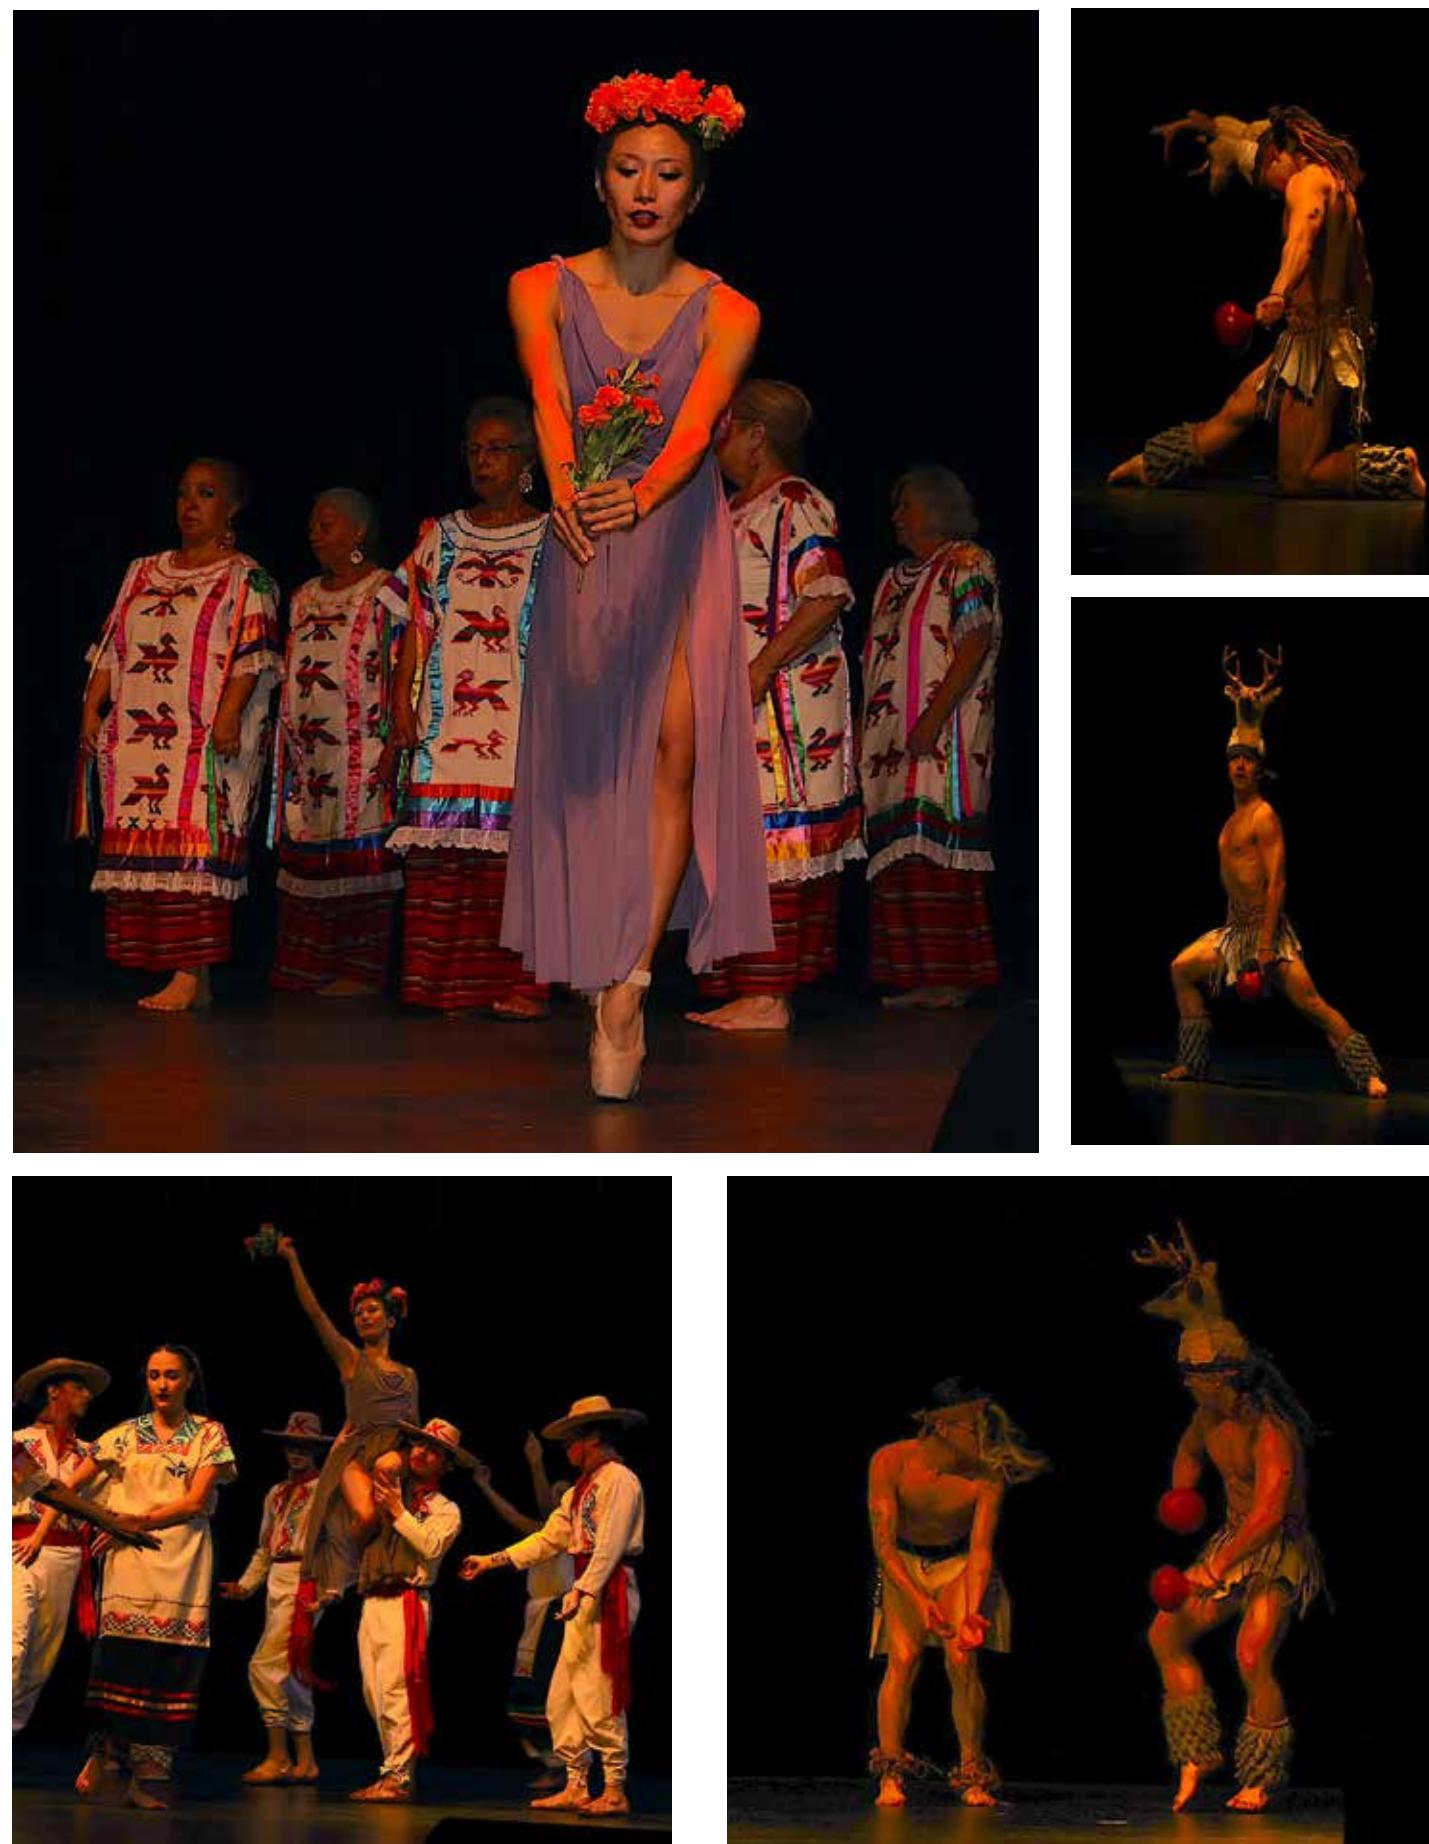

Ballet Nepantla in San Antonio

Photos by Dr. Ricardo Romo

Ballet Nepantla originated from a series of pláticas between founders Andrea Guajardo and Martín Rodríguez, two artists whose early professional identities emerged from distinct genres: Andrea from classical ballet and contemporary dance, and Martin from traditional Mexican folklórico. They envisioned a new form of expression that fused the two modalities, and they envisioned an aesthetic that would speak to the historical, cultural, and social realities of a broader narrative of being Mexican, Mexican American, immigrant, and trans-cultural.

Drawing inspiration from Gloria Anzaldúa's borderlands theory, Andrea and Martín imagined they could create performances that spoke to the "in-between" qualities of being from both sides of the borderland. They found the idea of Nepantla, a Nahuatl term of the indigenous people of Mexico. Nepantla provides a historical, intellectual, and artistic framework through which to explore the "in-between" spaces of history and culture by exploring new artistic expression that fuses different traditions on stage. Thus, Ballet Nepantla was born in January 2017.

Y luego haber sido inmortalizado en el Naismith Memorial Basketball

Hall junto con Tony Parker, Becky Hammon y el poste español Pau Gasol este 2023.

Por todo ello la afición ha indicado que Los Spurs en esta temporada estarán escribiendo su propia historia.

El director ejecutivo ha determinado que la solicitud está administrativamente completa y llevará a cabo una revisión técnica de la misma. El plazo para presentar una solicitud de audiencia de caso impugnado es de 15 días a partir de la publicación del anuncio en el periódico. Si la solicitud se presenta a tiempo, el plazo para solicitar una audiencia de caso impugnado se ampliará a 30 días después del envío de la respuesta a los comentarios.

Si se presenta a tiempo cualquier solicitud de audiencia de caso impugnado, el Director Ejecutivo remitirá la solicitud y cualquier solicitud de audiencia de caso impugnado a los Comisionados para su consideración en una reunión programada de la Comisión. A menos que la solicitud se remita directamente a una audiencia de caso impugnado, el director ejecutivo enviará por correo la respuesta a los comentarios junto con la notificación de la reunión de la Comisión a todas las personas que hayan presentado comentarios o estén en la lista de correo de esta solicitud. The 2023 Volvo XC40

by Albert Flores

package. Let me tell you from my daily driving experience with the Volvo brand, that they are built with quality materials, that feel luxurious, comfortable, and solid.

The XC40 has a unique and eye-catching exterior design. The front of the vehicle is dominated by Volvo's signature grille and headlights. The sides of the vehicle are sleek and aerodynamic, and the rear of the vehicle features a stylish taillight design. I have always felt like I am driving a luxurious car then I am behind the wheel of my Volvo. Of course, it is available in a variety of exterior colors, including Black Stone, Crystal White Pearl, Denim Blue Metallic, Fusion Red Metallic, Glacier Silver Metallic, Osmium Grey Metallic, Pine Grey Metallic, and Thunder Grey Metallic. The interior of the XC40 is just as stylish and spacious as the exterior. The cabin is well-appointed with high-quality materials and finishes. The front seats are comfortable and supportive, and the rear seats offer plenty of legroom and headroom for adults. Of course, it has its share of tech on the inside with a 12.3-inch digital driver information display and a 9-inch touchscreen infotainment system with Apple CarPlay.

The XC40 is available with two four-cylinder engine options B4 Mild Hybrid which produces 194 horsepower and 219 lb-ft of torque. It is available with front-wheel drive or all-wheel drive. The B4 Mild Hybrid gets an EPA-estimated 24 mpg in the city and 32 mpg on the highway. B5 Mild Hybrid: This engine produces 247 horsepower and 258 lb-ft of torque. It is only available with all-wheel drive. The B5 Mild Hybrid gets an EPA-estimated 23 mpg in the city and 30 mpg on the highway. The Volvo brand is widely known for its safety features and solid

The 2023 Volvo XC40 is a stylish and safe SUV that is perfect for families and individuals who are looking for a vehicle that is both fun to drive and practical. I personally use a Volvo as my everyday drive. I find the Volvo to have a solid feel, a powerful engine, tight control of the steering, and overall just a very safe car. The XC40 is available in a variety of trim levels such as the Core, the Plus, and the Ultimate, each trim level offers a variety of features and options, so you can choose the model that best suits your needs and budget. The Core trim level is the base model, but it comes standard with a variety of features, including a 12.3-inch digital driver information display, and a 9-inch touchscreen infotainment system with Apple CarPlay and Android

Auto. It also has heated front seats, a power-adjustable driver's seat with memory, a power-adjustable tailgate, and a beautiful Panoramic sunroof. And that is the base model! The Plus trim level adds the following features to the Core trim level. leather steering wheel, heated steering wheel, panoramic sunroof. It also comes in a bright Theme or dark theme exterior package. The Ultimate trim level is the top-of-the-line model. It comes standard with all the features of the Plus trim level, as well as the following features. Harman Kardon sound system, 360-degree camera, and the well-known, Pilot Assist. If that is not enough, you can pay a little extra for All-wheel drive, Advanced Driver Assistance Systems, a climate package, a convenience package, and a Protection body structure. The XC40 is one of the safest SUVs on the market. It comes standard with a variety of safety features, including This system automatically brakes the vehicle to avoid a collision with other vehicles, pedestrians, and cyclists. Blind Spot Information System (BLIS): This system alerts you to vehicles in your blind spots. S cross Traffic Alert: This system alerts you to vehicles approaching from the side when you are backing up. Lane Departure Warning (LDW): This system alerts you when you are drifting out of your lane, and the Lane Keeping Aid gently steers the vehicle back into your lane if you drift out.

The bottom line, you are going to get your money's worth in a Volvo, no matter what version you choose to drive. I have friends that own Volvo's with over 160 thousand miles and they say it runs like it's brand new with plenty of get up and go, and with plenty of safety and style to last another 100 thousand miles.
