La Prensa Texas

This grass roots publication is the life source for a community that is not easily afforded viable access to diverse and accessible media. San Antonio and the surrounding counties have become accustomed to relevant news brought to them in both English and Spanish since 1913.

In a surprising and bold move, France has chosen none other than Snoop Dogg to carry the Olympic torch. The decision has sparked a whirlwind of reactions worldwide, ranging from enthusiastic support to puzzled skepticism. Snoop Dogg, the iconic rapper known for his smooth voice and laid-back persona, is not the first name that comes to mind when thinking about Olympic torchbearers. It seems France is aiming to bridge cultures and reach a broader audience. Snoop Dogg's influence extends far beyond music; he is a cultural icon with a massive following across various demographics. His involvement could attract younger audiences and those who might not typically engage with the Olympics. It's a move that symbolizes inclusivity and the merging of pop culture with sports. However, not everyone is thrilled with this choice. Critics argue that Snoop Dogg's past, marked by legal issues and controversial lyrics, makes him an inappropriate representative for such a prestigious role. The Olympic torchbearer is seen as a symbol of unity, peace, and the highest ideals of sport. On the other hand, Snoop Dogg has undergone significant reinvention over the years. From his ventures into cooking shows, his transformation into Snoop Lion, and his charitable endeavors, Snoop has shown a capacity for change and growth. Perhaps this selection highlights the power of personal evolution and the idea that anyone can rise to embody the Olympic spirit, regardless of their past. So, what do you think about France choosing Snoop Dogg to carry the torch? Is it a forward-thinking move that embraces modern culture and inclusivity, or does it stray too far from the traditional values associated with the Olympics? Let's talk about it...

Ramon Chapa Jr.: "He has no talent! Can't sing. Talks! Just a bunch of dumb people made him rich! And he's ugly! Sorry, just being honest! LOL"

Charlene Smith: "Snoop Dogg may not be known best for his charitable side, but the California rapper has a long history of giving back to the community as a youth football coach, a co-host of the Athletes vs Cancer celebrity flag football game, and a Habitat for Humanity benefactor. Snoop Dogg is a rapper not an opera singer. When was the last time you made 5 and 6 figure donations to those in need in the disadvantaged community? Why people got to be dumb to appreciate rap music. You just insulted an entire culture and anyone that has an appreciation of his genre of talent. He is appreciated globally by artists, leaders of the world, intellectuals and others. Some comments are offensive, uninformed and demonstrate low level thinking!"

Let's Talk About It

France Chose Snoop to Carry the Torch

Kenneth Raymond: "He's part of the evil that's going on because they made dresses like girls in a tutu outfit! Like a Ballerina! He sold his soul for richness and fame!"

Rick Carter: "What he does, that's blessed. He brings Positive Energy to the Community. Snoop's a good guy, Let him carry the torch.."

Mary Svetlik Watkins: "I always thought torch bearers were people from the host country. I'm not opposed to Snoop though."

Robert Hernandez: "The World continues to laugh as we send a pot smoking rapper to represent the United States instead of one of our National Treasures like a Veteran!"

Rosie Speedlin Gonzalez: "Several non-athletes have been added to NBC's team of entertainment journalists. They caught my attention and kept me watching. I would've watched anyway. But they added some seasoning we didn't know we needed = ratings! Hello."

Raymond Torres: "Hart and Thompson are Hilarious."

Blue Rose Alvarez: "I don't know what the process is to be selected as one of the 10,000+ torch bearers but imagine it's an honor. Snoop and Pharrell Williams were both chosen to carry a torch in the relay. They are both talented musicians and businessmen and should not be identified by the mistakes they made during different chapters in their lives."

Kellie Williams Smith: "I don't get it. I think it should be reserved for the athletes."

Gregorio De La Paz: "Why?"

Trena Watson: "Muhammad Ali carried the torch as a former Olympian and one of the greatest boxers ever. I mean I love me some Snoop Dogg but this was just not the right choice. The Olympics should remain about athletes, not a cannabis smoking rapper."

AD To Ni: "For all those leaving negative comments, Snoop is a big advocate for youth athletics in his city. He puts his money where it helps the most. He was given the honor because he deserves it. FYI there have been several non athlete torchbearers including a student, a teacher, a psychiatrist and even the grandson of a famous polar explorer. The grandson wasn't even the actual explorer. So before you criticize this choice, ask yourself what have you done for your country lately. Then look up Snoop to see why he's a good candidate for this honor."

David Dardashti: "I'm shocked it's not in the shape of a joint. What the heck is this? Liberal minds have spoiled everything!! The torch is to be carried by an honorable Olympian. Wow everything that had value and honor has went down to s."

Paulina Vasquez: "Considering all he's done for young athletes and the support he gives to help make dreams come true for American kids, I'd say he deserves it."

Gina Newland Wulfestieg: "I think people are getting this confused with the person who lights the cauldron at the opening ceremonies. This is not that. Google says more than 550 people carried the torch from Athens to Paris. Snoop is just one of them. These are not Olympic athletes. All kinds of people. He's just making news because he's Snoop. He's great. Entertainer, family man, huge supporter of youth sports. You go Snoop! Enjoy yourself."

Ron O'Neill: "Regular people, famous people or athletes or veterans or politicians have all carried the torch. Why is everybody making such a big deal of this and criticizing no less."

Nancy Sartoris Baldino: "I don't understand ... Why him?"

Joyce Ann: "I wonder if people are wearing his sneakers too. He's about getting paid. Auntie Martha loves him. It's funny how Snoop Dogg got some white people mad. They feel like they're losing the ability to have control of everything and everyone. This is so funny."

Jenny McClintock: "About 10,000 people have carried the torch over the last two months. Snoop is at the end of the journey because he is also providing commentary on the Olympics in Paris, which I am stoked about. Snoop has been championing youth sports for over a decade and even has his own youth football league. He's living his best life with no room for negativity."

About the Cover Artist:

Centro Cultural Aztlan presents Newspaper Boys: Ayer y Hoy en San Anto August 9- October 17 featuring new works by visual artists Oscar A. Galván Jr. and Martin Emmanuel Rangel

Ruth Guajardo

In this exhibit, life-long visual artists Oscar A. Galván Jr. and Martin Emmanuel Rangel work together to give new life to the old practice of spreading the news. The exhibit pays homage to the artists' ancestors and nostalgically explores the aesthetics of past eras. The artists depict newspaper delivery boys across generations and time periods, blending past and present to share a unique perspective of the evolution of the time-honored tradition of delivering the news.

Both artists were born and raised in San Antonio and, through this exhibit, they evoke memories of San Antonio landmarks in the West Side and Downtown, like Joske's and Galván Pharmacy. The artists draw on emotions by superimposing newspaper boys of the past into present-day settings of San Antonio's city center, historic places, and various long-standing neighborhoods. They use color and contrast to juxtapose the aesthetics and style of the past with today's culture and environment. They artfully reflect the evolution over time of the way that our news is distributed.

Galvan's own father, Oscar A. Galván Sr., helped contribute to his family's livelihood by working hard as a paperboy during the Great Depression. This exhibit honors those who may have started out delivering newspapers and have gone on to become leaders and make significant contributions in their community.

Join us for the exhibit's opening reception from 6:00pm to 9:00pm on August 9th at Centro Cultural Aztlan. The exhibition is free and open to the public and will be on view through Thursday, October 17, 2024 Monday-Thursday, 10:00am-4:00pm. For more information, please call Centro Cultural Aztlan M-Th. 10am to 4pm at 210-432-1896 or come by Centro Cultural Aztlan's office located in the Deco Building at 1800 Fredericksburg Road, Suite 103.

Un Placer Volar Por Southwest

Por Franco

Tras los estragos económicos durante la pandemia [Covid-19], la industria de vuelos comerciales ha venido recuperando favorablemente tanto en vuelos domésticos como internacional.

Viajeros siguen aprovechando las ofertas de diversas aerolíneas en vuelos de negocio, familiares y diversión.

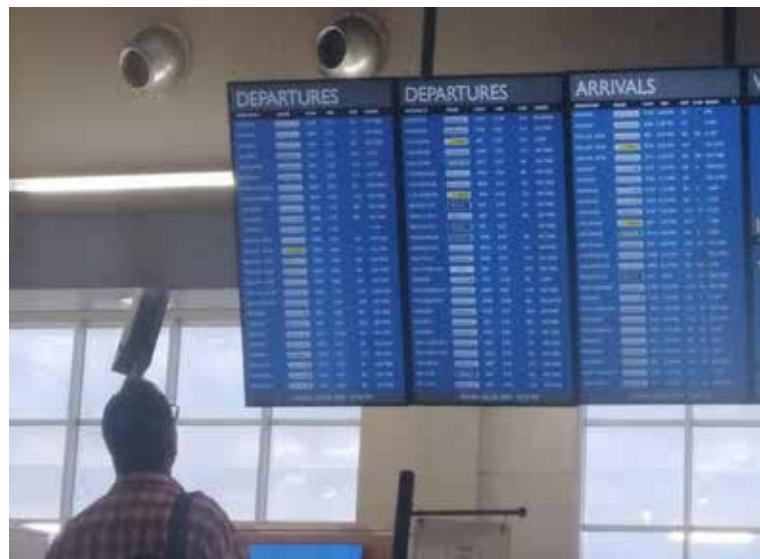

En mi caso éste 2024 es la segunda vez qué vuelo por Southwest de San Antonio, ha Phoenix Sky International Airport y de allá transbordo al John Wayne Airport (Condado de Orange-Santa Ana. California).

El costo de vuelo redondo es barato si sé reservan los boletos con días de anticipación.

Por mi parte recomiendo al público qué tiene en puerta hacer vuelos en las regiones del medio Oeste y el Oeste. Pará qué hagan sus reservaciones con anticipación y así sé ahorren una buena cantidad en su presupuesto económico.

Volar por Southwest es un placer. Su personal: Pilotos, aeromosas [sos], con su excelente trato hacen más seguro cada vuelo.

Santa Fe's Traditional Spanish Market And Contemporary Market Attract Thousands of Art Lovers

By Dr. Ricardo Romo

The 72nd annual Traditional Spanish Market opened last weekend, July 27-28, 2024 attracting an estimated 70,000 art lovers. The art festival features New Mexico's finest artisans and is known worldwide as the largest juried Spanish Market in the United States. The Santa Fe-New Mexican newspaper commented on the importance of New Mexican colonial arts—“retablo painting, straw applique, bulto carvings, weaving, furniture-making, and all the others” that have been passed down from generation to generation.

Spanish colonial art has been a part of New Mexico for four centuries. Spanish missionary friars arrived with the Royal Crown conquistadors in New Mexico in 1598. The settlers who came north to “new lands” brought essential objects including farm tools, furniture, and woven textiles. The region was not “new” to human settlement. While in New Mexico, Harriett and I visited the Taos Pueblo which dates back to the 13th century. Taos is recognized as the oldest continuous settlement in North America.

Most New Mexican settlers came from New Spain’s northern Zacatecas, Jalisco, and Guanajuato mining communities. The Franciscan friars also brought religious art for decoration and instruction. Spanish Franciscans desired the churches to be beautiful, and the art, including paintings, retablos, and statues, proved useful for religious conversion and teaching the Catholic faith.

Traveling from New Spain’s northern provinces, the first New Mexican settlers crossed the Rio Grande in 1598 and established San Juan de Caballero, north of present-day Santa Fe. Nearly a decade later they founded Santa Fe in 1607, the second oldest European town in North America. When the Spanish colonizers arrived, they had decades of experience building towns and religious centers in Northern Mexico. The Spanish friars built the first churches and schools in Western America. Among the settlers were craftsmen, carpenters, and masonry workers. After constructing the churches, craftsmen, and artisans added religious objects to the interiors.

Harriett and I arrived in Santa Fe two days before the weekend event and visited the Nuevo Mexicano Heritage Arts Museum at Santa Fe’s Museum Hill. As we entered the Heritage Museum, which specializes in Spanish Colonial art, we saw a banner depicting santero art on the left and contemporary art by Albuquerque artist Vicente Telles on the right. Staff members who designed the banner mentioned that Telles, a recognized santero, also works with contemporary narratives. We met Telles in 2022 when he exhibited with Brandon Maldonado at the San Antonio art gallery Presa House. The San Antonio Museum of Art chose Telles’s “La Malinche” painting for a large banner publicizing the La Malinche 2022 exhibit.

Nearly half of the Nuevo Mexicano Heritage Arts Museum collection is composed of the work of Spanish Market artists from the 1920s to the present. A small number of art pieces are from the period 1598-1821 with the remainder primarily representing 19th-century New Mexico, Spain, and other areas to place the collection in a global context.

We also visited briefly with Charles King owner of the well-known Santa Fe King Gallery on Lincoln Street. At the gallery, we encountered the extraordinary art of Arthur Lopez. Lopez has participated in nearly 50 shows since 2000. Major museums acquiring his work include the Albuquerque Museum of Art & History, the Denver Art Museum, the National Museum of Mexican Art in Chicago, the State of New Mexico Permanent Art Collection, and the Colorado Fine Arts Center.

Thanks to New Mexico

muralist Frederico Vigil and Ms. Roberta Ricci, Chief Experience Officer for The Albuquerque Hispano Chamber of Commerce and Board Member of the Atrisco Heritage Foundation, we previewed the art in competition for Spanish Market special recognition on the evening before the Market’s grand opening. The awards are presented by Atrisco Heritage Foundation, now the official sponsor of the Spanish Market, after nearly 70-year sponsorship by the Spanish Colonial Arts Society.

The New Mexican Colonial art was impressive, but we found the Youth Market especially delightful. Artists from ages eight to sixteen exhibited in a special area reserved to show their works. Federico Prudencio, honored with the Masters' Award for Lifetime Achievement, proudly viewed his eight-year-old granddaughter's artwork in the Youth Market. His son, Richard Prudencio, also participated in the juried event. Richard is a previous winner of Best Artist in the Furniture category. This talented family demonstrated that New Mexican artists believe in passing on their skills to younger generations.

Before this trip, we had never been to the Traditional Spanish Market or The Contemporary Market. We credit Albuquerque artist Vicente Telles, the young santero we met in 2022 in San Antonio's Presa House, for introducing us to the Traditional Spanish Market and identifying some of the stellar artists who make both the Traditional and Contemporary Markets such a fabulous event.

The organizers of the Spanish Market recognized the importance of expanding to include artists who have adopted traditional media and genre to evolve* artistic interests. The 38th Annual Contemporary Hispanic Market consisted of 123 artists this year. Arthur Lopez is a master at blending the old with the new. He believes that artists "can still use traditional methods to create contemporary work." Gallery owner Charles King added: "Equally important to Lopez is his need to transcend the bounds of the traditional santero and use his art as a medium for expressing the full range of his culture and the world around him." This was true for many of the artists participating in the Contemporary Hispanic Market. We learned by talking to artists and collectors alike that santero art is appreciated by individuals of many faiths and across different age groups.

The 2024 Traditional Spanish Market Magazine published by Atrisco Foundation featured Charles M.

Carrillo, one of the stellar artists linked to the success of the Spanish Market. Carrillo is one of the santero stars of the Spanish Market and one of the few santeros doing academic research on the origins of religious objects in New Mexico. His book, Saints of the Pueblos, is an important primer for artists and collectors alike.

The Santa Fe art market provides opportunities for artists to present their work to a broad audience and provides the support and recognition that encourages these artists to continue the New Mexican art tradition across generations.

PIÉNSELO DOS VECES ANTES DE USAR UN PRÉSTAMO

"COMPRA AHORA, PAGA DESPUÉS"

Por: Albert Mata, Banquero de Patri-
monios Privados
Bank of Texas

Los programas de "compra ahora, paga después" (BNPL, por sus siglas en inglés) permiten a los consumidores repartir los pagos sin intereses durante un período corto, haciendo que las compras sean más manejables. Sin embargo, los expertos advierten que esta conveniencia puede llevar al gasto excesivo y al posible daño del puntaje crediticio si no se realizan los pagos.

El financiamiento BNPL está ganando popularidad rápidamente, especialmente entre los consumidores latinos y otros grupos financieramente vulnerables, incluidas las mujeres, las personas de color y los jóvenes. Estos programas ofrecen financiamiento a corto plazo sin costo adicional, donde los consumidores generalmente pagan un pequeño anticipo y luego realizan pagos más pequeños durante un período establecido. Sin embargo, no cumplir con estos pagos puede impactar negativamente en el puntaje crediticio.

Según la Oficina de Protección Financiera del Consumidor (CFPB, por sus siglas en inglés), los préstamos BNPL en EE. UU. crecieron de 16.8 millones en 2019 a 180 millones en 2021. Más de un tercio estadounidenses han utilizado al menos un servicio BNPL, y el 56% ha experimentado problemas como el gasto excesivo, dificultades para devolver artículos y pagos atrasados.

Para los comerciantes, los programas BNPL aseguran que no pierdan una venta debido a la falta de capacidad de pago de los compradores en el momento de la compra, lo que contribuye a mayores ventas. Pero para los consumidores, estos servicios pueden ser una pendiente resbaladiza hacia más deudas.

Los programas BNPL difieren de los préstamos tradicionales o tarjetas de crédito en que generalmente tienen un período de pago más corto y no tienen cargos por intereses u otras tarifas. Aunque no todos los prestamistas BNPL informan a las agencias de crédito, el número de los que lo hacen está aumentando. Además, los pagos atrasados enviados a los cobradores de deudas pueden ser reportados, dañando su puntaje crediticio.

Las tarjetas de crédito cobran intereses por cualquier saldo llevado al siguiente ciclo de facturación y pueden ayudar a construir crédito si se realizan pagos a tiempo. Sin embargo, los pagos atrasados o los saldos altos pueden dañar el puntaje crediticio. En 2023, la CFPB introdujo protecciones relacionadas con disputas de facturación, derechos de reembolso, divulgaciones y estados de cuenta para los programas BNPL.

Antes de decidir usar un programa BNPL, considere estos cinco puntos:

- Preste Atención a Su Deuda: Evalúe su deuda total en todas las cuentas.

- Pregúntese por Qué es Necesario: Consideré las compras que no puede pagar por adelantado.
- Conozca los Riesgos: Esté al tanto de las posibles tarifas por pagos atrasados.
- Comprenda el Impacto en Su Crédito: Sepa si el programa utiliza una verificación de crédito blanda o dura.
- Proceda con Precaución: Asegúrese de poder cumplir con todas sus obligaciones financieras para evitar consecuencias a largo plazo.

En conclusión, aunque los programas BNPL pueden ser convenientes, requieren una consideración cuidadosa y una gestión financiera disciplinada para evitar acumular deudas incontrolables y dañar su puntaje crediticio.

El Comisionado Miller Del Departamento De Agricultura Anuncia Que La Solicitud De Subvención Para Comidas A Domicilio Estará Abierta Del 1 De Septiembre Al 1 De Noviembre

Cortesía de Maddison Jaureguito

El comisionado de Agricultura de Texas, Sid Miller, anunció que las solicitudes para Texans Feeding Texans: Programa de subvenciones para comidas a domicilio se abrirán el 1 de septiembre de 2024 en la página web del Programa de comidas a domicilio del Departamento de Agricultura de Texas (TDA). El programa brinda apoyo financiero a proveedores calificados de servicios de comidas a domicilio, garantizando que los texanos confinados en sus hogares reciban comidas nutritivas y de alta calidad.

"Estos programas son más que sólo alimentos", dijo el comisionado Miller. "Una comida a domicilio es un salvavidas que les recuerda a algunos de nuestros texanos más vulnerables que no están olvidados. Por eso es tan importante el Programa de Subvención de Comidas a Domicilio. Insto a todas las organizaciones elegibles a que comiencen con ventaja sus solicitudes, porque no se trata sólo de comidas; se trata de cuidar a nuestros vecinos".

El Programa de subvenciones para comidas a domicilio (HDMGP) es parte del programa general Texans Feeding Texans. Establecido durante la 80.^a Sesión Legislativa en 2007, el programa apoya a agencias gubernamentales y sin fines de lucro que brindan comidas a domicilio mediante la creación de asociaciones entre proveedores de comidas locales, los condados y el estado. Las solicitudes para la subvención 2024 se aceptarán a partir del 1 de septiembre de 2024 y de-berán presentarse a más tardar el 1 de noviembre de 2024.

HDMGP es una subvención no competitiva; Todas las entidades elegibles que presenten una solicitud calificada recibirán una adjudicación basada en la necesidad. Para calificar, las organizaciones que proporcionan comidas deben primero obtener una subvención financiera del condado donde operan. Como el proceso de subvención puede ser largo, la TDA recomienda que los solicitantes comiencen a trabajar con sus condados lo antes posible.

Con el apoyo de HDMGP, las organizaciones que proporcionan comidas pueden llevar dólares del TDA directamente a sus comunidades. Lo más importante es que las personas mayores y discapacitadas de Texas podrán recibir apoyo crucial, no sólo nutricional sino también social. Estos programas conectan a los texanos confinados en sus hogares con sus comunidades.

"Nuestro programa de subvenciones para comidas a domicilio tiene como objetivo marcar la diferencia", dijo el comisionado Miller. Al apoyar a los proveedores de alimentos locales, brindamos nutrición, un sentido de comunidad y atención a quienes más lo necesitan. Esta iniciativa es un testimonio del espíritu de Texas de vecino ayudando al próximo".

Una agencia gubernamental o sin fines de lucro que entregue comidas a personas mayores (de 60 años o más) o discapacitadas confinadas en sus hogares es elegible para solicitar una subvención a través del Programa de subvenciones para comidas entregadas a domicilio. Para que los proveedores califiquen, deben:

- Del 1 de septiembre al 1 de noviembre de cada año: Revisión administrativa para garantizar que las solicitudes estén completas con la información requerida. Las solicitudes enviadas antes del 1 de noviembre podrán enviar información complementaria, si es necesario. Sin embargo, TODA la información debe estar completa y enviada a la TDA antes del 1 de noviembre.
 - De noviembre a principios de diciembre: TDA trabaja con Salud y Servicios Humanos (HHSC) y la Agencia del Área para el Envejecimiento (AAA) para determinar la cantidad de comidas elegibles para los cálculos de la subvención.
 - Mediados de diciembre: TDA envía una verificación por correo electrónico a cada solicitante para confirmar la cantidad de comidas elegibles. Se requiere una respuesta de cada proveedor.
 - Finales de diciembre: calcular las subvenciones y enviar la notificación de la carta de concesión de la subvención y los acuerdos de subvención.
 - Enero: los proveedores de comidas devuelven los acuerdos de subvención firmados a la TDA
 - 1 de febrero de cada año: se paga la primera mitad de la subvención y los proveedores de comidas deberán documentar los gastos mediante informes de desempeño trimestrales.
 - * 1 de agosto de cada año: Se paga la segunda mitad de la subvención.
 - * El personal del programa TDA monitoreará a los beneficiarios y realizará revisiones documentales periódicamente durante todo el ciclo de la subvención.
- Si tiene alguna pregunta, comuníquese con TDA en Grants@TexasAgriculture.gov.

"Stuff The Bus" with Pearl and The CE Group

With the rising cost of school supplies, many parents find themselves struggling to financially support the lists of necessary purchases, especially those with multiple children. According to the National Retail Federation, the average cost of school supplies for a family with students in elementary school through high school in 2023 was a whopping $890. In 2024, as inflation has yet to cool, it is fair to only expect this number to rise.

Each year, the Communities In Schools of San Antonio (CIS-SA) Stuff The Bus School Supply Drive provides free school supplies to thousands of underserved students and families throughout the school year. Their impressive work through the drive has garnered the support of many local organizations and leaders, and their reach has expanded to an impressive total of over 160 schools and 11 school districts within the San Antonio area. This year, Pearl and The CE Group, Inc., a local experfrom 11 AM to 2 PM at 307 Pearl Pkwy. The Drive will feature a real school bus in which participants can "Stuff The Bus" with their donated backpacks for a chance to win a pair of tickets to see musical trio, LA LOM at the recently reinvigorated venue, Stable Hall.

The CE Group, the first business to move in as a tenant at Pearl, has helped as a partner to create memorable moments for the district that have marked its history, and they are excited to continue to do so in the name of generosity.

"As an effort to continue our company giving initiative, Champions of Experience, we are thrilled to be partnering with both Pearl and CIS-SA on something as impactful as serving the next generation of educated leaders in our community with the tools to build a brighter future," says President and CEO, Janet Holliday.

Pearl encourages not only its tenants and residents to participate but challenges the entire San Antonio community to help meet the tremendous need by getting involved in the drive.
